Campbell confides

SONIA Kruger has more faith in Mornings co-host David Campbell's (together, right) Logie chances than he does. Campbell is up for a best new talent award.

He has discussed tactics with Kruger, including dealing with victory or rejection on the big night.

"Sonia reckons I can win. She thinks I should have a plan — lose my temper or something if I don't," he said.

"If it's winning, it's tears and crying — and if it's losing, it's a yard glass, Bob Hawke-style."

Campbell said his father, rocker Jimmy Barnes would not be impressed by a win.

"My dad thinks it's funny," Campbell said.

"He has a trillion awards. He's like, 'awards shmawards'."

Channel 9's Mornings team is starting to make an impact against rival Channel 7. They won the ratings on two consecutive days last week.

"I think people get what we are and what Sonia and I do," he said.

"Some might call it unprofessional. But we like to have a lot of fun."

LOGIES tensions have escalated between rival networks.

Broadcast on Nine and affiliated with TV Week magazine, some in the industry have accused the other networks of not doing any pre-promotion of the event.

While personalities from all networks will walk the red carpet and possibly take home awards, their employers have been less than enthusiastic about promoting the event.

Pictures: Ian Currie, Tim Hunter, Sam Rutty, Stephen Cooper, Channel Seven.

GLENANE DRIFTS INTO FILM

BALLARAT boy Aaron Glenane (below) has scored a coveted role alongside movie grump Sam Worthington.

Glenane stars with Worthington and Xavier Samuel in the surfing movie Drift.

"I was a bit nervous before meeting him," Glenane said.

"What he's done and accomplished, I have a lot of respect for him — he's smashing it — and I learned a lot."

However, Worthington snubbed the movie's premiere last week.

Drift was filmed in Yallingup, WA, about 18 months ago.

Glenane, 26, landed the role after appearing in a string of TV dramas, including Puberty Blues and Tricky Business.

He will also be seen soon in ABC's Janet King alongside Vince Colosimo and Damian Walshe-Howling.

"I'm slowly chipping away at it," Glenane said.

Alyssa's divine as screen queen

AUSTRALIAN model Alyssa Sutherland (above) will play a warrior queen in the hit US show, Vikings.

Sutherland, 30, who got her big break in the Girlfriend Model Search in 1997, will star as Scandinavian queen Aslaug in the second series of the show.

She told Confidential: "I feature in the finale and shake things up a bit. It's really exciting."

Sutherland, who had a small role in The Devil Wears Prada, moved to Hollywood to pursue her acting career.

She has appeared in Law and Order SVU, and drama Arbitrage with Richard Gere.

The Brisbane-born beauty is married to director Laurence Shanet.

MKR's recipe keeps success on the boil

MY Kitchen Rules continues to reheat a good thing with another series-stretching round.

Eliminated teams will return next Sunday to fight for a place back in the competition.

The first teams back are Tassie mates Ali and Samuel, Victorian housewives Angela and Melina, WA food geeks Kieran and Nastassia, and popular father-and-son team, Mick and Matt.

And, yes, you read correctly — no Jessie and Biswa!

Guest judge Colin Fassnidge (pictured below, between My Kitchen Rules master chefs Pete Evans and Manu Feildel) issued a blabbering statement about showing up, stepping up and plating up.

But Confidential decided to save ink, and shut him up.

Michelle Bridges isn't crying over her recent split with husband Bill Moore.

The Biggest Loser trainer has been spotted with a bespectacled male and seemed far from morose. Bridges, at dinner with the mystery man, clearly enjoyed his company.

Said one spy: "He put his hand protectively around the small of her back when they left together."

Bridges recently split from Moore after nine years of marriage, but the pair remain close friends.
